Reported: 05-26-2015 0807

Police noticed a white male dressed in black with a backpack on and no shoes leaving the north side of the Dairy Queen. The male walked to the east of the building in the tall grass and then disappeared in the swampy area. Police did locate the backpack that the male was wearing laying along a tree line. The male all of a sudden appeared near the backpack and stood up. The male was given commands to get his hands up and then immediately reached down towards the backpack. Both officers on scene yelled several times and the male then complied. The male was handcuffed and secured near the officer's cruiser. The male stated that he works for Dairy Queen and that he got off work the previous evening and that he called for a taxi but it never showed so he slept near the garbage cans by Dairy Queen. The male was asked why he was walking bare foot and he stated that wet cool grass felt good on his feet. The male was checked for wants or warrants and nothing was found. He was then released at the scene.
