(18002088) Civil Matter

Reported: 03-16-2018 0523

Police observed a male running and approaching a semi-truck exiting the area. The male advised that his co-driver left without him and he shouldn't be driving. He further explained that they had parked their truck for the night while they went out. He and his co-driver had gotten into a verbal argument. Although he didn't think his co-driver was impaired; he meant he shouldn't be driving because of company policy. Police assisted in charging his cell phone and he was able to notify his company dispatch that he had been left behind. His dispatch was going to try and get the co-driver to come back and bring him his personal items and find him another truck.
